Salem—“is the first college established in North Carolina. It was founded in 1772 by the Moravians. . . .”

That is part of her perpetual claim to distinction, and her participation in our lives is to our credit.

We are all parts of Salem—all five hundred and forty-five of us; but the whole is far greater than the sum of its parts.

*We have seen her edge into our personalities—usually unnoticed until the end of the year,
And often uninvited if we came here in search of curious anonymity.
Gradually, she has thrust on us the oversize cloak of responsibility, making us grow to fit it with increasing ease and uncertainty.*

We have enjoyed the animated social chatter about earthshaking events which shook no earth, and refectory conferences about the state of the world outside The Square. But we have rarely delighted in the midnight reflections of ourselves and our efforts which she has provoked.

*We are proud of Salem's knack for putting personalized notebooks on our shelves,
Lumps in our throats, sentimentality in our window sills and on our bulletin boards,
New ideas and visions in our minds, and new strength in our veins.*

We have lived to be grateful for her guidance in our journeys through the labyrinths of our minds.

She has stood quietly and peacefully, but with a powerful stance:

One foot in a bygone age and the other on the periphery of our own.

We came to Salem not knowing the sound of quarter-hour bells that we hear anew every fall;

Not knowing that cobblestones ruin good shoes for week-ends away;

And not knowing that friendships are hammered out in the heat of adversity.

We came, not quite sure that we had ever seen beauty—until the autumn sun set behind skeleton trees in The Square.

Or until winter gave the May Dell a nap under white, or we saw reawakened images of ourselves in the lily pond.

We never quite knew until summer when we were gone.

We came to Salem in search of new experiences—and found them in a hundred Christmas stars,

*In brass bands on the street corner, and in rows upon rows of identical white tombstones,
In sisters on Founders' Day, and in exams; in grease paint, test tubes, leotards, and practice rooms.*

We have found ourselves just beyond our fingertips.

We have grasped at those around us, not as with a butterfly net, but as they have lighted on our shoulders.

And God we have found wherever we have looked and meant to find.

Some of us came to Salem in search of a means by which to bring home bread.

Others of us have sought to become someone for whom a man would be proud to do that service.

Salem has ministered well to both of us, and the gateway is open—

The gateway to the Seventies and beyond.

With her warmth, gentility, and a genuine concern for those around her, she is the embodiment of Salem spirit. To each of us she has been a special friend, sharing with us our heartaches as well as our happiness. We, the seniors of this year and "her juniors" of last year, wish to show our gratitude by dedicating the 1970 SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS to Mrs. Margaret Chatham.

'70

Salem is a composite of memories, experiences, tradition, revolution, anticipation, and anxiety . . .

It is a spirit talked about but not defined. Most of all,

Salem is a day-to-day existence insignificant in fragments, but important in its entirety.

STUDENT LIFE means a reflection of a year in preparation for the future.

Inception, in ORIENTATION and FITS, through a friendly welcome and well-intended attention,

FITS Chairman: Becky Lucas

and in the strange combination of rivalry and harmony on FOUNDERS' DAY;

perception, in the making of friends, an appreciation of the particular beauty of Salem's seasons, and a new awareness of an extended meaning of Sisterhood.

We represent the new generation, the new values, the new movements, and the old wish for man to live in peace.

We have three options — concern, action because of concern, and apathy. Concern is shown in the MORATORIUM in the square; action through the TUTORIAL PROGRAM, the consolation of friends, and the attention of faculty members.

Individual effort is all that is asked, and all that can be offered, but such efforts are often realized in group action, as the Sophomore's CHRISTMAS BANQUET, CHRISTMAS IN OLD SALEM, and the lighting of a tree.

There are times to influence and to be influenced, to expand our own narrow spheres through exposure—HEADSTART, SALEM-BENNETT EXCHANGE program, and FOCUS.

Anne Austin, Janice Gaskins, Kyle Fauth, Brenda Parker.

There are times to contribute and to gain, in CHALLENGE WEEK, class participation, and in simple daily interaction.

There are times to reminisce, as in SENIOR FOLLIES.

and the Monday morning reflection of a weekend.

Finally, there are times to look ahead to a new year, a new career, and a new decade.

70

To join, to belong, to participate . . .

SENIORS . . . final involvement within, without, beyond ourselves. Uncertainty returns, but the old idealism persists, perhaps tempered by age. Where shall we go, or is it—whom shall we go with? Utilization and innovation—the challenge of the new decade.

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS: Mary Pickens, Treasurer; Fran Hicks, Secretary; Mary Leight, Vice-President; Lynn Gayle, President.

JUNIORS . . . a year of new importance in preparation for leadership with a settling and shifting of academic and social interests. This is the class with ambiguous attitudes towards Salem—uncertain of their roles, as individuals within a unity.
